BRITISH FORCES LAND AT SEVERAL NORWAY POINTS

Presumably Today the British Are at Grips With The German Forces

ALONG 400-MILE FRONT

London Observers Agree That It Means Full-Scale Engagement

(By International News Service)

British forces have been landed at several key points in Norway, and today were presumably at grips with the German army in active combat along a 400-mile front for the first time since hostilities ceased on the western front 22 years ago.

A brief communique issued by the Admiralty and the War Office indicated the successful landing of expeditionary forces on war-embattled territory.

It gave no details as to the men or fighting, but observers in London agreed that it meant a full-scale engagement between British and German forces on Norwegian soil, far exceeding in violence and strategic importance any of the weak skirmishes that have occurred between the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

The Admiralty made this announcement:

"British forces have now landed at several points in Norway."

Nazi Germany today outlawed King Haakon, of Norway, as a "vassal of England," predicted early Italian participation in the war, and threatened devastating aerial attacks upon the British Isles.

In a series of press and official pronouncements which included a hint of some spectacular move by Spain, the Reich forecast that Britain would suffer for encouraging Norway to resistance.

Now that Norway has been occupied, the newspaper Nachtausgabe said, Germany has gained immense advantages for air force operation against Britain.

Possibility of Spanish activity was based upon what the German press described as an "extraordinary midnight meeting of the war council in Madrid."

Germany and King Haakon parted company after the Reich failed to convert the monarch to the German cause in Scandinavia.

3-FOLD PROGRAM IS PRESENTED AT A W. C. T. U. INSTITUTE

Dr. Warren Walker, Ardmore, Speaks on Subject of Social Diseases

HELD IN HULMEVILLE

County Unions Assemble Saturday; Hold L. T. L. Medal Contest

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 15—The three-fold program outlined by Bucks County Woman's Christian Temperance Union for its 23rd annual institute, held in Neshaminy Methodist Church Saturday, was well fulfilled—the main presentations being a health address, an L. T. L. silver medal contest, and Christian citizenship study.

The health section of the afternoon program was an address on social diseases delivered by Dr. Warren Walker, Ardmore; legislative information for Christian citizenship consideration was presented by Mrs. Maud E. R. Stuckert, Newtown; and the Royal Temperance Legion contest was participated in by seven young folks.

Dr. Walker, who is associate director of the Division of Syphilis and Genito Infectious Diseases, State Department of Health, was introduced by the president of the county organization, Mrs. Elsie L. Nixon, Newtown. He traced the history of syphilis, described advance of the disease, mentioned the numerous methods by which it is transmitted, then presented information on the strides made in both diagnosis and treatment.

"Severe cases are now very rare in this country," he informed, "probably because the strain of the disease is weakened." He told of the discovery of the germ in 1905, and of the discovery of the Wasserman test or blood test in 1906. The untiring efforts expended by Ehrlich were considered, with his eventual success through his 60th experiment, in a search for improved treatment for the disease. That advancements made in diagnoses have hastened time of treatments and thus brought cures, was one point quipped out.

Frank J. Vasti Weds Miss Mabel Caioni

In a Sunday church wedding, yesterday in St. Ann's, Miss Mabel Caioni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giacinto Caioni, 23 Lincoln avenue, became the wife of Frank J. Vasti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Vasti, Trenton, N. J. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Peter Pinci, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

A maid of honor, Miss Mary Volpone; two bridesmaids, the Misses Dorothy Liberatoro and Theresa Marozzi; and a flower girl, Helen Mariani, all of Lincoln avenue, attended the former Miss Caioni; while serving Mr. Vasti as best man was Nicholas Muccioli, Trenton, N. J.; the usher being Guido Caioni, brother of the bride.

For the wedding processional, the organist, Miss Frances Tamburella played the wedding march by Lohengrin. The vocalist was Miss Yolanda DiFelice, Lincoln avenue, who sang "Ave Maria," and "The Rosary."

A gown of white silk net was worn by the bride, the tight bodice being gathered at the front. A V-neckline, long sleeves puffed at the shoulder, and long, full skirt featured, the dress having a very long train. Spanish lace trimmed the bodice and the train. Her veil was of white silk tulle, crown effect, with a flat band of pearls across the front. White moire slippers were worn, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white flowers.

The maid of honor, bridesmaids and flower girl, were gowned alike, selecting for the occasion floor-length models of poudre blue French marquisette. The close-fitting bodices had gathered at the center of the front, the necklines were high, and short sleeves were puffed. At the neckline and at the bottom of the puffed sleeves, tiny rose-buds were used as trim. Hats formed of blue flowers were worn, face veil being draped from the same. They wore blue satin slippers to match their gowns, and each carried a colonial style bouquet of pink rose-buds.

Four hundred guests attended the reception in Mutual Aid hall, where a dinner was served. Following a week's trip to New York state and Eastern Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Vasti will reside at 117 Bayard street, Trenton, N. J. The bride's travelling costume consisted of a pink dress with trim of poudre, black coat and poudre blue accessories.

ROAD TO LEARNING

A research engineer connected with the film industry urges more extensive use of motion pictures in the schools. Pictures, he says, will teach a child in half the time required for books to teach him.

It is an old argument, and probably gains few converts by repetition. Men who were brought up on the hard grind of Latin and mathematics will always refuse to believe that education comparable to theirs can be inculcated by flickering images on a screen. You can learn in that way how pictures look, they hold, and how things happen that are represented by the pictures, but you cannot habituate yourself to the processes of abstract reasoning. You acquire ability to think only by thinking. Although you may not have known anything in particular when you got through Cicero and the binomial theorem, you did have a facility at managing your mind in connection with any phenomena which might arise thereafter.

Despite the opposition of the diehards, however, pictures are already shown in some schools, and for the spread of certain kinds of factual knowledge will probably be shown more. Meanwhile, it should be pointed out, the theatres offer a great many courses to supplement the old-fashioned system of education.

They teach all of us, from infancy to old age, how to enter a drawing room, how to be a bandit, how to appear in a beauty contest, how to conduct one's self in a love affair, etc. It would take a long while to learn those matters through the formula, $(A \text{ plus } B) \text{ times } (A \text{ plus } B) \text{ equals } A \text{ square plus } 2AB \text{ plus } B \text{ square}$.

THE DOLLAR SYMBOL

One of the most commonplace of symbols is the dollar sign, but few Americans know its history or its origin. Everybody uses it and the relatively few who have wondered over its invention and introduction into universal usage have usually satisfied their curiosity with the presumption that, like Topsy, it just grew.

During the early days of the American colonies Spanish vessels carried in and out a large part of the trade of the little American seaports. True, most of it was in violation of the navigation acts imposed on the colonies by England, but, because of Spain's control of Central and South America, the Caribbean, Florida and the West Indies, it was a natural and inevitable sort of trading.

From her holdings in Peru and Mexico, Spain virtually produced all the world's silver, hence throughout the American colonies the eighteenth century Spanish silver dollars were nearly as common as English ones.

The Spanish coins were inscribed with the coat of arms of the Spanish royal family, a part of the design of which was two pillars intertwined with an S. The pillars represented the "Pillars of Hercules" of classical lore; Gibraltar Rock and Ceuta, which together formed the Strait of Gibraltar.

Hence, by natural and easy stages, an ideogram resulted which first meant a Spanish dollar but later found its way into the language of America as a symbol.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 22, 1878. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

B. F. Allen employed a man on Monday night to watch his pear trees, the fruit from which somebody had disturbed without asking permission. The man watched, and watched well, for during the night he saw a woman get over the fence and proceed in the direction of the pear trees. He started for her, and so did the dog, and the intruder started at the same time for the fence, which she reached before her pursuer, who followed her over the fence. Then ensued an exciting race, but the woman easily outdistanced the watchman.

On the 10th instant, a mail pouch sent from Trenton for Bristol failed to reach the postoffice here, and nothing was heard of it until Monday, when two boys fishing in the Hollow Creek caught something, which upon examination proved to be the missing mail-bag, the strap of which had been cut and the contents tampered with. The boys took it to the railroad depot, from where it was sent to the postoffice, where it was examined, and particulars of the matter sent to the proper authorities, who will investigate the matter. It is supposed that the pouch was thrown off the train between the railroad station and the Hollow Creek, and that somebody picked it up and after overhauling the mail matter threw it in the creek, where it was found.

At the railroad crossing at Mill street, the railroad company has put up the gates which have been so long talked of, and there is no doubt but that the arrangement will be an advantage as far as preventing horses and carriages from crossing the tracks when trains are approaching, but as the gates do not extend to the sidewalks, pedestrians will run more risk than ever, as the flagman having the gates to attend to, cannot give as much attention as heretofore to warning those about to cross the track when the cars are in sight.

On the 13th of next month, H. Clay Beatty Post, G. A. R., will have a grand camp fire to celebrate the anniversary of the organization of the society, when an interesting time may be expected. Trenton Post, of the Grand Army, will be invited, and probably some from other places.

Bristol was well represented at the shore last week. Fifty-four names appear upon the hotel registers.

John Boyle, of Bristol, a lad aged nine years, was drowned on Sunday at Queen street wharf, Philadelphia, and on Monday evening his body was brought here for interment.

The steamboat Nelly White has reduced the fare from Bordentown to Philadelphia to 50 cents for the excursion and 30 cents for single trips.

The receipts for freight at Bristol station amount to between three and four thousand dollars per month.

The freight receipts at Bristol by steamer are larger than any town on the Delaware River.

Thirty-eight streets in the borough of Bristol.

After the street committee succeed in abating the nuisance known as John's Pond, we suggest that the name of Pond street be changed. The word Pond too intimately suggests such unpleasant things as frogs, green scum, mud and filth, and when the cause of its present name is removed it would be highly proper to give the street some more suitable title.

A man and wife whose combined ages were 128 years, were tramping along the canal last Monday morning. They said they were from New Hope and were on their way to their son's, who resided near Wilmington, Del.

The second annual exhibition of the Delaware Valley Farmers and Mechanics Agriculture Society takes place in Lambertville, N. J., on September 10th, 11th and 12th.

"Spoiled Girl" by LUCILLE MARSH JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS

Wealthy Sam and Helen Snow object to their daughter Gabrielle's interest in handsome Peter Parsons because he has no social background. Gabrielle thinks their disapproval unfounded because her father started as a roustabout in the Oklahoma oil fields before he made his fortune in oil. She becomes angry when her mother reminds her of her Uncle Gabriel's will, which stipulates that if Gabrielle marries before she is 21, she is not to receive his money until she reaches 35. With her Boston terrier, Odd, Gabrielle breakfasts at the drugstore where Peter works as an 18-2-week soda clerk. Peter is a talented pianist. Later that day, Gaby promises to meet him at 11 P.M. after he is through working. When Gaby's mother tells her that her father is giving them a trip to Europe, the girl wonders why she isn't enthused when it is what she always wanted. That evening, Gaby jumps at an invitation to a party at the home of her friend, Dorothy Mackey, for it will facilitate her meeting Peter. As eleven o'clock draws near, Gaby confides in Dot and prevails upon her to make it a four-course with her fiancé, Tony. In the rumble seat of Tony's coupe, Peter and Gaby decide to get married that night. Dot and Tony think they are fooling.

CHAPTER FIVE

Finally Peter convinced them that he was in earnest and Tony and Dorothy got back into the car again, and drove on toward New Iris. When, a few minutes later, they reached that small county seat, Tony stopped the car again, and yelled: "Got's starving. Shall we go to that little all-night place and eat?" "No, Gaby and I want to be married right away!" cried Peter. "Listen, one track," began Tony, "do you know what time it is? Do you know that it requires a license to be married even in the wilds of Oklahoma?"

Peter looked blank for a moment, then grinned foolishly. Gabrielle regarded him with amusement. The drive in the night air had made her hungry, too, so she said: "Let's take Dot to eat before she passes out. We can talk about our coming wedding then."

After he had been shown that the hour was almost three in the morning, Peter agreed. They were soon the only customers in a small cafe. While waiting for sizzling steaks to be prepared, Peter again approached the subject uppermost in his mind. "What time do the license bureaus open, do you suppose?"

"My word! Are you really going to be married?" asked Dorothy. She asked the question of Gabrielle, but it was Peter who answered. "Just as soon as it can be managed," he said.

"Are you?" repeated Dorothy, still looking at Gabrielle. "Yes, said the blushing bride," answered Gabrielle, hanging her head with assumed coyness. The steaks arrived, and all four of them silently carved away for a few minutes. Presently, Tony looked at Dorothy and said seriously: "Let's make it a double wedding, Dottie?"

"Come, come! Can't a girl even eat her breakfast, or supper, or whatever this is—without a proposal?"

Tony smiled understandingly and said nothing at all. Peter was holding Gabrielle's slim hand under the small table, and his blue eyes were adoring.

to grave ones. Dorothy and Tony kept up a bandying of words which amused Gabrielle, but scarcely touched Peter at all. He was almost oblivious to his surroundings. "I should go home," Dorothy said once. "So should I," Gabrielle said. They stared at each other. "Well, if you ask me, it's so late now that it doesn't matter," grinned Tony. They watched the dawn break, these four. And, with the coming up of the sun, their spirits rose also. More coffee was ordered and tall glasses of fruit juice. Tony suggested they all go to the small hotel across the square and take rooms to freshen up.

"But, Gaby, my dear!" exploded Dorothy. "He's plenty nice—but a soda boy!"

"The fat's in the fire now—we may as well be comfortable," he said. "We haven't any luggage. Will they let us register?" asked Gabrielle. "Why not?" countered Gabrielle, grinning. "Everyone does, sooner or later. I think Peter's a darling!" "But, Gaby, my dear!" exploded Dorothy, sitting up suddenly. "He's plenty nice—but, a soda boy! What will your charming mother have to say?"

"She always has much to say about nothing," replied Gabrielle absently. "She might as well have something to talk about. Besides, who could help loving Peter?"

Gabrielle dropped back on the creaky bed with a thud. "Heaven preserve us," she said. "Let's fix up," urged Gabrielle, getting off the bed. She went into the small bathroom and washed her hands. Presently she came back and asked, "Got any extra powder, Dot? My compact is empty as usual!"

Dorothy got up wearily and searched for the desired powder, finally locating it in the depths of her pocketbook. Handing it to Gabrielle, she smiled suddenly and slipped her arm around her friend's shoulders.

Said Gabrielle coaxingly: "That's the girl, Dottie! Smile and the world smiles with you. And, Dot—I've just got to have the world smiling with me. I simply can't bear it if it doesn't!"

Dorothy regarded her with a one-sided little smile, then leaning over she kissed Gabrielle on the cheek. "The world always smiles with you, Gaby," she said. "You never have any trouble getting what you want. I'm only afraid you don't always know what you want."

They had to climb the stairs as there was no elevator; they found that part of the second floor was given over to what would pass for the mezzanine. Tony suggested they meet here in half an hour. Once in their room, the girls took off their hats and threw themselves on the bed. Dorothy kicked off her shoes with a little cry of relief. "Aren't you dead, Gaby?" she asked wonderingly, looking into Gabrielle's glowing face. "Too excited, Dot!" breathed Gaby.

IN Mr. Dewey's case he has gone into the West, eliminated the rival most closely identified with that section and barged for himself a considerable number of delegates. In addition, he has demonstrated a vote-getting ability calculated to weaken the opposition in his home State and attract the band-wagon loys outside. He is a long way yet from landing the prize, but it is idle to dispute his lead. However, the thing from which Republicans generally derive most satisfaction is that Illinois and Nebraska both gave confirmatory evidence of the Republican trend. Up to date, every election test and every primary since 1938 has done that.

TO the more astute politicians these continued and consistent signs of a trend in the Republican direction mean more than anything else. They were unmistakable in Ohio; in New Hampshire; in New York; in Wisconsin; in Illinois and in Nebraska. In all these States the tests have shown an increase in the Republican vote and a decrease in the Democratic over 1938. In no election to fill a House vacancy in the past two years have the Republicans lost a seat. In almost every instance they either have retained the seat won in 1938 or gained one. Democrats explain these things as due to "local conditions." Republicans insist that they prove the tide which turned in 1938 is still running. It must be admitted that Illinois and Nebraska lend strength to this view.

GRAND THEATRE

Entertainment plus opened at the Grand Theatre last night. The picture is "Broadway Melody of 1940," and a mere recital of what it has is more of a sincere recommendation of it than all the descriptive phrases in the English language.

First, it teams Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell, world's greatest dancers in the masculine and feminine field. It has the personable George Murphy dancing with them. It includes comedy from Frank Morgan, and what comedy. It has beauty in Florence Rice and Lynne Carver. It has the likeable Ian Hunter. It includes a bevy of clever dancing girls.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Starting today, the Bristol Theatre will show the two most popular comedies of our time on the same program, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "It Happened One Night." The first picture mentioned above stars Gary Cooper in one of his most successful roles. In the supporting cast are Jean Arthur and Lionel Stouffer. The director of this picture was Frank Capra, ace director, who has captured more Academy Awards than any other Hollywood director.

The second picture, "It Happened One Night," was also directed by Frank Capra and it also was an Academy Award winner. The all star cast is headed by Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert, and the picture was responsible for creating a brand new style of film. Although several attempts have been made by various studios to duplicate this type of picture, none has ever quite measured up to it.

Try This With Your Electric Beater

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

An ancient adage has it that cakes are like bad boys—the more you beat them the better they become. But we have long since learned that this isn't true either of cakes or boys. Cakes, however, require a good bit of time and effort if they're made by the spoon method. But the electric beater has brought many changes. The best one is that, with an electric beater, results can be the same every time if a few simple directions are followed.

Our own Institute cake recipes give directions for mixing both with the spoon and electric beater. The electric-beater method for cakes made with shortening is very simple. Usually the shortening, sugar, and eggs are creamed together at a relatively high speed; dry ingredients are added alternately with the milk, as rapidly as possible, at lowest speed. For light batters, first mix the eggs, milk, and melted shortening in the bowl at medium speed; then add the sifted dry ingredients at low speed. Remember, always pull the plug to disconnect your electric beater before you put on or off beater blades or other attachments.

Here are the recipes and electric-beater methods for making a mouth-watering Lady-Baltimore Cake and Frosting.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of Good Housekeeping
Institute

Lady-Baltimore Cake

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

1 1/2 c. shortening	1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/4 c. granulated sugar	1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 c. sifted cake flour	3/4 c. milk
2 1/2 tsp. baking powder	8 egg whites

Since Lady-Baltimore Cake is a white cake and therefore the egg yolks are not used, we like to beat the egg whites in the small beater bowl first, so that the mixer blades do not need to be washed before the shortening is creamed. Butter and margarine are more easily creamed if allowed to soften for a while. Cream the shortening in the large mixer bowl at a relatively high speed. When it is the consistency of mayonnaise, add sugar, a little at a time. Cream well after each addition, until the mixture is light and fluffy. This is when an electric beater really comes into its own. You will find that the creamed shortening and sugar acquire a whipped appearance that is rarely achieved with hand-mixing. You are now ready to add the dry ingredients, which have been previously sifted together. Turn the beater to lowest speed—and watch out for overbeating. Quickly add the dry ingredients and the combined milk and flavoring extract, alternately. Stop the beater the moment the last bit has been mixed in. Then, with a spoon or wire whip, slowly fold in the beaten egg whites. Four batter into three greased 8" layer-cake pans, and bake at 375° F. for 25 to 30 min. After removing cake from oven, set it on cake racks about 5 min. Then loosen edges, invert on racks, remove pans, and turn cake layers right side up.

And now for the frosting, which, after all, is the crowning glory of the cake. It's a real chore to make frostings like this by hand, but as simple as can be with an electric mixer.

Lady-Baltimore Frosting

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

1 1/2 c. granulated sugar	1/2 tsp. cream of tartar
1/2 c. water	1/2 c. egg whites

Combine sugar, water, and cream of tartar; stir until smooth. If day is clear, cook without stirring to 260° F., or to the hard-ball stage. Cook to 270° F. if day is cloudy. If crystals appear on inside of pan, wipe them down with a damp cloth. When cooled, pour over stiffly beaten egg whites in the large beater bowl, and beat until mixture peaks or pulls away from the sides of bowl. Makes enough to fill and frost a 3-layer cake generously. Divide mixture into halves. Into one half fold the following mixture:

1/2 c. chopped nuts	1 tsp. candied cherries, chopped
1/2 c. seeded raisins, chopped	2 dried figs, cut into thin strips
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Fill the cake with this mixture. Spread with the plain frosting. Garnish with cherries and nuts.

syphilis, with Great Britain less in proportion to population, and the Scandinavian countries still fewer cases. The reason for the figures being higher in this country, Dr. Walker stated "is through failure of the medical profession and health officers to cope with it as compared to other diseases."

Another item of information given is that the disease is much more prevalent in warmer climates, and among the negro race. The difficulty of diagnosis was mentioned, "there being 147 diseases that might be confused with syphilis. The only certain method of diagnosis is through a blood test, although physicians of the older school who in years past saw numerous cases in various stages can detect them more readily."

The new marital health examination law which will be of great aid to the health of residents of Pennsylvania was considered briefly; then the speaker mentioned that people having the disease should not drink, as drink greatly hampers or in some cases prevents a cure.

The day's activities were divided into two programs, with the hostess group, Hulmeville W. C. T. U., serving an appetizing luncheon at noon tide. Sixty members responded to roll call, these representing unions in Bensalem, Bristol, Churchville, Fallington, Hulmeville, Lane, and Makefield.

Newtown, Colebury, Wrightstown and Yardley. G. T. brought the attendance figures to 75. Spring flowers were used for decorations, both in the session hall, and on the luncheon tables.

The morning program included devotional exercises by Miss Emily J. Packer, Newtown; greetings by Mrs. Joseph O. Canby, president of Hulmeville union, with response by Miss Jane Rodgers, Bristol; introduction of guests; business session; piano solo, Miss Marie Hanson; vocal solo, Miss Adeline E. Reetz; noon prayer and memorial service. The L. T. L. medal contest winner was Miss Evelyn Nixon, Newtown, her selection being "Good Times and Bob." The other participants vying for honors were: Dominic DiLisio, Bristol; Mildred VanHise, Makefield; Sidney Yates, Makefield; Alice Kester, Newtown; Bertha Hoder and Jean Tease, Wrightstown. Each received an L. T. L. pencil. The contest was conducted by Mrs. Dora Balderston, Makefield, county director of medal contests. The judges were inclusive of: Miss Etta Watson, Fallington; Mrs. S. S. Force, and Miss Elizabeth Weeks, Yardley.

Songs led by Mrs. William DuHamel, Bristol, opened the afternoon meeting; then the Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness, pastor of the Methodist Church here, conducted the devotional period. The changes noted during the past 100 years in working conditions were given some consideration by the clergyman, he recalling through records that a century ago some employers found it necessary to keep workers happy by providing whiskey at regular intervals during the day. "Years passed, and we of this generation saw the 18th amendment put into effect, with a respite from the curse of strong drink through that measure." Repeal of that amendment followed in a few years, "and we have seen a remarkable climb in drinking since repeal," he added. Quoting figures the Rev. Harkness told that 9 1/2 million dollars were spent in Delaware County in one year for liquor as compared to 5 1/2 million dollars spent for schools in the same period; while in the state of Pennsylvania during 1938 $300,000,000 was spent for liquor and $151,000,000 for schools. "We must be dupes to allow our money to get away in that fashion. We must inform our people. The people must know the truth about these matters... It is a sad thing that a minority can prevent the will and good interest of the majority of the people." The speaker reminded the temperance workers that "This is a work we should never let up on—the forces of evil die hard. And we must work in such a way that the activities of informed citizens shall become effective. Furthermore we must not get discouraged. That is one of the chief dangers... Who can be against us if God be for us?"

Miss Gladys Harper, Yardley, the secretary, read the recommendations of the executive committee which was in session prior to the afternoon meeting. It was mentioned that Bucks County's turn to entertain the regional council, is in 1941, that affair to take place in Bristol in May. The treasurer, Mrs. Roscoe L. Horner, Langhorne, reported that the sum to be paid on the centenary fund is steadily decreasing, the debt now being less than $200. She also reported an increase in the "hold fast unions"; and informed there are 16 "gold star" unions, or organizations which have paid all their dues.

A motion passed that a request be sent to one radio broadcasting company that that company refrain from broadcasting liquor advertisements.

Mrs. Stuckert, Newtown, in her program of Christian Citizenship, presented several pieces of proposed legislation and bills that have passed, during the 15-minute period allotted. Other afternoon selections were: Readings, Miss Elma E. Haefer, vocal duet, the Misses Grace H. Illick and Adeline E. Reetz.

HULMEVILLE

PREDICTS YANKEES WILL AGAIN WIN THE AMERICAN PENNANT

If Red Sox Should Win It
Would Be Biggest Upheaval
Of All Time

HAVE SHAKY PITCHERS

Yanks Seem Likely To Have A Tremendous All-
Around Club

(Herewith is the first of two articles by Lawton Carver, International News Service Sports Editor, on the prospects in the major league pennant races which open Tuesday. Today, the American League.)

By Lawton Carver
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, Apr. 15.—(INS)—If the Boston Red Sox win the American League pennant for 1940 it will be regarded as one of the biggest baseball upheavals of all time, despite a tendency among some observers, including Connie Mack, to foresee dethronement of the New York Yankees. The latter logically can't be shunted aside.
They must be figured to win their fifth straight pennant and as many world championships in a row with a club apparently as good as it was last year. That means a club rated among the all-time greatest.

The Red Sox, who finished second last season, were 17 games behind the champions and insofar as can be determined at this stage of the proceedings haven't accomplished enough since to overcome that tremendous deficit unless the Yankees should slip badly for no very good reason. While the Sox have power and fielding, they are burdened with extremely shaky pitching, which probably will further perpetuate their frustration.

The Yanks again seem likely to have a tremendous all-around club combining the better features of hard hitting, smart pitching and beautifully deft fielding. The lineup will be, as usual, Bill Dickey behind the bat, Babe Dahlgren on first base, Joe Gordon at second, Frankie Crosetti at short, Red Rolfe at third, and George Selkirk, Joe DiMaggio and Charlie
Keller in the outfield.

In the event Red Ruffing, a 21-game winner last season, Lefty Gomez, and Bump Hadley are headed for the toboggan as some insist, the Yankees still have more than a dozen other pitchers.

So how can the Red Sox nose out this aggregation, which last season again spreadeagled the American League field, then annihilated the Cincinnati Reds in four straight for the world title?

The race should therefore finish about like this:

New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit or Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

LIST TEN TEAMS FOR BUCKS COUNTY LOOP

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 15.—Ten teams will be in the Bucks County Baseball League this season, it was announced yesterday at the scheduled meeting of league officials at Point Pleasant.
The season will start Sunday, April 25th, and close August 25th, when playoffs get under way.

Teams in the circuit this year include the Loyal Republican Club of Bucks county and Warrington Elks;
two newcomers, and the former clubs
of Point Pleasant, Plumsteadville, Doylestown Red Sox, Midway, Doylestown A. C., New Hope, Lamberville and Furlong.

BIG CROWD WATCHES "ANGEL" THROW DUSEK

TRENTON, Apr. 15.—Over 2200
wrestling fans crowded into the Arena
Saturday night to see the "Angel" Tillet battle with Joey Dusek.

Most spectators came only to see if the Frenchman was really as ugly as his pictures. When "The Angel" ambled down the aisle to perform in the feature of five bouts, the citizens just looked. They looked again, amazed, eyes blinking . . . and by a unanimous vote agreed that he is fully entitled to his "ugly" claim.

He hopped into the ring displaying an oversized head that wrinkled even on top, a pair of surprisingly thin legs and more than a hint toward fatness around the midriff.

As the bout progressed Dusek, noted as an off-color wrestler, started his crowd-baiting. He slugged a bit and poked thumbs into Tillet's eyes when necessary. "Qu'est-ce qu'est?" the Frenchman would roar, and the crowd roared with him.

Tillet, after perspiring and drooling all over the ring, started on his way to victory with his famed bear hug.
Time after time he grabbed Dusek around the middle and just squeezed.
Dusek weakened rapidly and at the 18-minute mark said "uncle" for the overgrown Frenchman.

The feature bout was the wind-up of a hectic night—even for the Arena.
In the semi-windup Bobby Stewart,
the Golden Terror, gave his version of mayhem on the mat for 16 minutes.
The 302-pound Terror, whose temper was uglier than "The Angel's" face, used every illegal hold he could master before pinning Lord Albert Mills.
Stewart earned a nice round of boos,
and was almost thumped on the nog-

Warren Bockwinkel, handsome crowd pleaser from St. Louis, took turns flying out of the ring with Ralph Garibaldi in the third tussle. At one point both boys flew into Row 1 and continued wrestling there. When they returned to the canvas Bockwinkel tossed a leg hold on Garibaldi and pushed his shoulders into the resin at the 18-minute mark.

Karl Pojello, manager of "The Angel" and a grappler himself for the past 25 years, showed plenty of wrestling finesse in pinning an unimaginative villain named Joe Maynard in a preliminary. Pojello won with a series of body slams after 17 minutes.

Henry Kulkovich and popular Maurice LaChapelle wrestled to an eventful 30-minute draw in the opener.

LONDON, Apr. 15.—Germany has lost 54 units of her naval fleet, the British radio claimed today. England, on the other hand, has lost only 30 units, it was stated.

LUXEMBURG, Apr. 15.—New security measures were ordered by the Luxemburg Government today.

Gatherings of more than three persons will be prohibited in the streets after nightfall. All public buildings will be guarded by police.

BERLIN, Apr. 15.—Early Italian participation in the war, and significant moves possibly in the same direction by Spain were discussed by the German press today. Berlin newspapers accorded prominence to a speech made last night in Rome by Giovanni Ansal-do, authoritative editor, who warned Italy probably would enter the war shortly on Germany's side.

Public School Students Give Musical Program

this nature. The program was arranged by Earl J. Frick, instructor of instrumental music in the Doylestown schools, assisted by Horace M. Hutchinson, Morrisville and Elizabeth Stewart, Southampton.

In the opinion of those who have heard the previous festival presentations, the affair was by far the finest, marked by noticeable improvement in practically every department.

Three numbers were particularly outstanding, including first the High School girls' glee club, with three numbers under the direction of Clarence Rumpf, supervisor of music in Yardley public schools, who led "In My Garden"; another number, "In the Boat," led by Lucille Mayberry, supervisor of music in the Springfield township school district; and the third number of this group, "The Green Cathedral," conducted by Miss Myrtle Ratzell, supervisor of music in the Buckingham schools.

Big improvement in the second annual all-Bucks county orchestra was very marked. Three selections were presented by the orchestra, the first,
"Sullivan's Operatic Gems," conducted by Earl J. Frick, of Doylestown; the second part, "Andante Cantabile," (Fifth Symphony), conducted by Kenneth E. Blyler, supervisors of music in the Falls township schools, and the third group, "Introduction to Act Three" (Lohengrin), conducted by Horace M. Hutchinson, supervisor of music, Morrisville junior-senior High School.

Very good in detail, and highly entertaining was the opening number of the program presented by the Junior Chorus, in three parts. The first part,
"Go Lovely Flowers," was conducted by Miss Grace E. Paist, supervisor of music in the Bensalem township schools; the second part, "De Gospel Train," conducted by Miss Helen Petrie, supervisor of music, Lower Makefield school district; and the third part, "Moonbeams."

The senior high school mixed chorus concluded the interesting program.
This was presented in four parts, the opening number being "Prayer" (Hansel and Gretel), conducted by Miss Margaret B. Morning, teacher of music in the Doylestown schools; part two, "Dear Land of Home," conducted by Miss Marie Louise Barton, supervisor of music, Doylestown township school; part three, "When Day Is Done," conducted by Miss Olive Hartman, supervisor of music, Richboro school district; part four, "Mountains," conducted by Miss Elizabeth F.

Stewart, supervisor of music, Upper Southampton township schools.

Another interesting group was the boys' chorus, presenting three numbers, "Japanese Sandman," conducted by Miss Stewart; "Desert Song," and "John Peel," conducted by Charles T.
Shane, supervisor of music, Langhorne-Middletown public schools.

Although an error in making up the program resulted in the Buckingham High group not being mentioned on the printed sheets, this school was very much in evidence with a group of over 50 boys and girls.

Another mistake on the program presented "Mr. John Hoffman" as Bucks County Superintendent of Schools, whereas it was "J. Harry Hoffman" in person, scheduled for remarks.

The County Superintendent was liberal in his praise of the 1940 music festival. He expressed the opinion of some that because the Bucks county court house, the largest auditorium available in the county, is too small to accommodate the crowds for this event, that it be held later in the season at some outdoor place. Although some music supervisors deem this impracticable, it will be given consideration next year.

Schools or districts that took part in this year's festival are as follows:
Bensalem Township schools, 55 pupils; Doylestown Junior-Senior High School, 69 pupils; Doylestown Township schools, 12 pupils; Falls Township schools, 33 pupils; Langhorne-Middletown public schools, 43 pupils;
Lower Makefield school district, 22 pupils; Morrisville Junior-Senior High School, 43 pupils; New Hope High School, 39 pupils; Newtown public schools, 23 pupils; Richboro school district, 21 pupils; Buckingham schools, 55 pupils; Springfield Township school district, 43 pupils; War-minster Consolidated School (Mrs.
Alta S. Leary, principal), 15 pupils;
Upper Southampton Township schools,
47 pupils; Yardley public schools,
Clarence Rumpf, supervisor of music, 19 pupils.

Divorces Show Increase Of 500% in Bucks County

said, civilization will be destroyed with it.

He then gave the result of his investigation into the subject of divorces in Bucks County. During the thirty years from 1900 to 1930, he had discovered that while the population of the county increased 29 per cent, the number of divorces had increased one hundred per cent. This, he said, is a rapid tendency in the wrong direction. In a dramatic manner he described the procedure in a divorce case, and the heart-rendering stories which judges must read in the testimony which is presented to them.
Every broken home is a tragedy, he said, and desertions are also much more numerous than ever before.

Judge Boyer stated that the record of Bucks county for divorces, bad though it is, is exceeded by other nearby counties which have more populous urban communities.

Judge Boyer also spoke of the sad conditions which are revealed in the juvenile courts, where many of the offenders are shown to be boys and girls from broken homes or lacking in home training.

Judge Boyer emphasized the urgent need of strenuous action to control the divorce problem, and one remedy suggested, he said, would be uniform divorce laws in all the States. In this connection he mentioned the divorce mill at Reno, Nevada, where anyone for almost any reason whatever, may obtain a divorce by paying a fat fee and fulfilling the residence requirements.

But laws, he said, will not get at the root of the trouble, which lies in the early training of children. He claimed that the first few years of the child's life are the most impressionable, and in those years will be formed the habits of conduct and obedience which control the actions later in life. Therefore, he said, the burden of training children properly rests with the mother in the home, and not on the school teacher.

Judge Boyer predicted, however, that the time is coming when all high school students will receive definite training in preparation for marriage and home-making.

Too many divorces, he said, are the result of an impetuous desire to run away and get married.

In this connection he advocated also uniform marriage laws in all States, with at least two weeks publication before the license is issued and the ceremony performed.

Among the definite causes of broken homes and divorce, he named selfishness as the commonest cause, cruelty, uncontrolled temper and a domineering disposition.

All these attitudes, he said, may be found either in the husband or wife, and when carried out to the limit will result in nothing but misery, especially to the innocent children in such cases.
